Acrostic Poetry

An acrostic poem is one in which the first letters of the lines, read down the page and spell out a message or a name. Use the letters of Vulcan to begin your lines. (This is especially challenging if you rhyme your verses.)

For example:

Vulcan silently surveys all he sees.
Up high on Red Mountain above the trees,
Looking down on Birmingham's rich histories -
Catching, holding, both proud and sad memories.

As he ponders many past events gone by -
Now he looks forward to what ahead will lie!
